American Masonry Corporation Benefits from Union Labor

BACNJ continually evolves for the betterment of signatory contractors and members

Development and training are top priorities for the contractors and union workforce of New Jersey. Unions are committed to creating cost-effective, productive work places through innovative craft training and installation procedures of the newest products to enter the construction market. Apprenticeship programs continue to attract and produce highly-skilled workers available only to those that are signatories.

In this industry, especially during these times, it is imperative that the work force is also fully trained in regards to health and safety. Unions are committed to state-of-the-art safety training for members, which includes OSHA 30-hour safety courses. As a result we see improved morale, increased productivity, decreased costs and unequalled performance.

Our company also finds that as a union contractor, we save administration costs. The Union administers the benefit package contribution of all of their members, so our union employees will receive excellent healthcare coverage, pension, annuity and much more. Thanks to the pool of qualified workers the Union has available, we also realize significant cost savings by not having to recruit and interview non-union employees.

Why AMC Benefits From Union Labor:

- Unlimited source of experienced highly skilled workers
- Fully trained work force in health and safety
- Flexibility of workers that can be used on an "as needed" basis

"Working in conjunction with BACNJ has become more of a team effort over the years. American Masonry Corporation has been a union masonry contractor for over 10 years and, due to the many advantages, we can never envision our company becoming a non-union contractor."
